

October 29, 2013

Physician Assistant Jamison Dicus has joined Vein Specialists

VEIN SPECIALISTS

Physician Assistant Jamison Dicus has joined Vein Specialists with offices in Fort Myers and in December 2013, an office opening in Bonita Springs serving south Lee County and Naples, announced Dr. Joseph Magnant, company founder and president.

Physician Assistant Jamison Dicus has joined Vein Specialists with offices in Fort Myers and in December 2013, an office opening in Bonita Springs serving south Lee County and Naples, announced Dr. Joseph Magnant, company founder and president.

Dicus assists Dr. Magnant in performing new patient, preoperative and postoperative evaluations. He is trained and qualified to diagnose and treat deep and superficial venous thrombosis and venous insufficiency as well as manage anticoagulant therapy.

He schedules patients for venous insufficiency ultrasound studies, and interprets the findings directly for patients, explaining the latest treatment technologies available based on the findings of the Doppler ultrasound study. He is qualified under the supervision of Dr. Magnant, to decide which venous treatments would be most appropriate and beneficial for patients.

Prior to joining Vein Specialists, Dicus was a physician assistant at Surgical Healing Arts Center in Fort Myers, where he earned his certification as a sports nutritionist by the American Sports and Fitness Association.

Dicus is a 2010 graduate of Hodges University, Fort Myers, where he earned a bachelor's degree and was named to the Dean's List. He continued his education at Nova Southeastern University, Fort Myers, where he earned a Master of Medical Science in the Physician Assistant Program. Raised in North Fort Myers, Dicus was named as the top high school football kicker on the 2004 Florida Athletic Coaches Association All-District 16 Football Team.

"Jamison is an important addition to our team of specialists who provide our patients relief from the pain and embarrassment of venous disorders," said Dr. Magnant. "His proven proficiency as a physician assistant and the examples he sets for a healthy lifestyle make him an ideal team member at Vein Specialists."

-End-

(<http://www.naplesnews.com/news/2013/oct/29/physician-assistant-jamison-dicus-has-joined-vein->)